

About

The AQA B Psychology course for A-level has often been lacking in online material, and even in terms of text books and other studying materials. The website was created to dedicate revision notes, audio and video files to aid those studying the AQA Specification B for Psychology. The website is mainly made up of revision notes which you'll probably find helpful when it comes closer to examination time, but it also features lectures which often aids in increasing understanding about a particular topic of difficulty.

To begin using the website, we recommend consulting this web page first It will tell you the best way to make most out of the information here. After you've read through that, take a quick look at the site map to get you started on revision!

Good Luck!

Remember, we're always in need of some good quality material to share on this website. If you think you can help, get in touch, and we'll get it online so we can share it with other like-minded students or teachers.
